

Rx Systems announces the launch of ProScript

Rx Systems is a new, independent company based in Elstree, Hertfordshire, which has developed an innovative Windows-based dispensary management system, which will deliver the following functions: labelling; endorsing; ordering; stock control; monitored dosage systems and head office reporting/branch management software.

The company is run by Simon Ward and Ian Taylor, both of whom worked for Mediphase Ltd – Simon as technical director and Ian as sales director - before that company was sold to UniChem in December 1999. Both Simon and Ian have a wealth of experience and knowledge of the community pharmacy market in the UK and have remained active within pharmacy IT.

Rx Systems will provide a 'one stop solution' to meet the information technology needs of community pharmacy and it will also provide customers with network services including:

- * secure pharmacy broadband - a secure broadband service for community pharmacy
- * an automated, secure disaster recovery product
- * Norton Anti Virus - a managed anti-virus solution

Ian Taylor, sales director for Rx Systems says, "During the development of ProScript, we have been mindful of the changes to the Pharmacy contract. Additional services and activities will need to be routinely recorded and made available for both audit and remuneration to various stakeholders. The National programme for IT (NPfIT) will require Pharmacy to connect to the NHS network (N3) to facilitate Electronic Transfer of Prescriptions and data exchange with the NHS Care Record. The structure of ProScript will mean that these requirements, when defined, can be implemented quickly. It is vital that community pharmacists chosen software partner has a firm understanding of the changes taking place within the industry and can demonstrate flexibility, innovation, as well as having developed products which will assist pharmacies to cope with all the forthcoming changes."
